

ALTERNATIVE CANCER TREATMENTS

---

WHAT WILL MY DOCTOR SAY?

STEVE ALLEN

Alternative Cancer Treatments- What Will My Doctor Say?

Table of Contents

The Difference between Conventional and Natural Cancer Treatments ...	3
Do Alternative Treatments Really Work? .....	5
Why Doesn't My Doctor Know About These Treatments?.....	7
How Could My Doctor Be Against Alternative Treatments?.....	8
What Will My Doctor Say About These Treatments?.....	9
Deciding What to Do .....	10

This report is for informational purposes only. It is not intended to be a substitute for the diagnosis, treatment or advice of a qualified licensed professional health care provider. This report offers people information gained through research that tells them what the author believes are good alternative medical options, but it in no way should be considered to it represent the "practice of medicine" in any way, shape or form. The author of this report assumes no responsibility for how information in this book is used. None of the statements in this book have been evaluated or approved by the FDA.

Alternative Cancer Treatments- What Will My Doctor Say?

Steve Allen

Before we get into what your doctor will say when you ask them about alternative cancer treatments you must have a pretty good handle on what the differences are between these natural cures and the conventional treatments used by orthodox medicine. You must also really be convinced within yourself that they work. Trying to convince someone, especially your doctor who has spent his or her life studying medicine, that you know what you're talking about can be a daunting task. Let's answer both of those questions.

The Difference between Conventional and Natural Cancer Treatments

The typical Oncologist (cancer doctor), because of their medical training, sees cancer as an enemy of the body that must be eliminated as fast as possible. They have three normal strategies in this war.

First is surgery in which they cut out a cancerous tumor or remove an infected organ. Second is usually to give the patient highly toxic drugs called chemotherapy that attempt to poison the cancer cells faster than it poisons the patient's healthy cells. Chemotherapy drugs target fast growing cells, which is what cancer is, but they more often than not kill more healthy cells than they do cancerous ones which causes the patient to become weak and extremely vulnerable to infections and diseases of all kinds. The third line of defense in this war is to burn the affected area with radiation therapy. This often destroys many healthy cells in the surrounding area too, though the ability to pinpoint the placement is getting better.

These treatments may destroy some or in a few cases even all of the cancer cells, but at an extremely high cost both financially and in the death of healthy cells in the body. But more important to understand than that is that they do nothing at all to correct the underlying cause or condition in the body that lead to cancer in the first place. In fact, they make these conditions worse because they kill many of the anti-cancer portions of the immune system and the body is left in a much more toxic and acidic state after these treatments. Toxicity and acidity are two of about five main causes of cancer. So what is happening is that the treatment is strengthening what caused the disease in the first place. The result is that even if the cancer is destroyed by the treatments, it comes back with a vengeance because the underlying issues causing the cancer have not been corrected but have been instead made worse by conventional cancer treatments.

Alternative natural cancer treatments are the extreme opposite approach. There are two basic approaches to natural cancer treatments. The first is to kill cancer cells in a way that does not harm the body. The second is to correct the root causes of cancer so that when the cancer is gone it will not return. There are about five basic causes that need to be corrected. These are 1) less than sufficient amounts of life-giving oxygen getting to the cells, 2) extreme acidity in body pH balance, 3) extreme toxicity in the body from all sorts of carcinogenic agents, 4) weakened immune system making it unable to fight off cancer when it forms, and 5) an incorrect Retine to Promine balance in the body making it easier for cancerous cells to grow.

When a person eliminates these root causes of cancer the cancer essentially has no choice but to die. Cancer loves an oxygen deficient environment that is highly acidic which are both caused from a build up of toxins and a weak immune system. Add that to lessened amounts of Retine caused by aging and too much Promine which causes rapid cell growth and you have the perfect storm about to arrive. Depending upon what stage the cancer is and how much it has already affected the function of vital organs, eliminating these causes can be fairly easy or very difficult.

Do Alternative Treatments Really Work?

There are literally hundreds of alternative cancer treatments which really do actively work against cancer cells. There are some natural cancer killers that are much, much more effective than chemotherapy in killing cancer but without the negative side affect of killing healthy cells at the same time.

There are, however, only certain treatments that do enough and act fast enough to make the difference needed in a cancer patient who has “terminal” cancer growing out of control in their body. The best-known natural treatments aren't necessarily the ones that work the best!

I have attempted to find the most beneficial alternative cancer treatments which actually do work on advanced cancer. In fact, when dealing with advanced cancers the success rates using certain treatments are usually much higher because while they supply the body with the necessary nutrients to boost its immune system they also supply cancer cells with substances that cause them to quit growing and often even to die.

So, do alternative treatments work? The answer is a definite and resounding "yes". Terminal cancer is a doctor's diagnosis based on conventional treatments because they realize the tragically low rate of effectiveness of their treatments. But they can't tell you about natural treatments and keep their job because their job is based on drugs and medications. This graphic display of the difference of the survival rates between natural treatments and conventional treatments should cement into your mind which of the two are most effective.

Why Doesn't My Doctor Know About These Treatments?

Alternative cancer treatments are gaining in popularity and public knowledge much due to the internet. While it was very difficult to get word out to the public a generation ago, getting information is now as easy as a click of a mouse. But it is still not as widely known as it should be. This is mostly due to political issues in an industry that has billions of dollars to lobby Congress for laws that are in their favor.

Most alternative treatments are on the "Unproven Methods of Cancer Management" list which is maintained by the American Cancer Society (ACS). This list includes any treatment that has not been proven by their politically imposed testing procedures. These procedures cost hundreds of millions of dollars and essentially exclude any treatment that isn't discovered and patented by the pharmaceutical drug companies. So, any procedure, product or treatment that is on this blacklist at the ACS is not taught in medical schools where your doctor learns how to treat their patients.

Besides medical schools not teaching alternative treatments, your doctor will not know about most of these treatments because medical journals are maintained by the drug companies and the American Medical Association (AMA) so they rarely contain articles about alternative treatments. These journals are also published for the mainstream medical establishment and are mostly financed by advertisements from pharmaceutical companies which don't want anything in them competing against their drugs, especially if the competition is extremely cheap and effective. Doctors are continually bombarded with negative articles about alternative treatments from the AMA and the pharmaceutical industry.

The AMA is basically the physician's union that takes upon itself to be the political lobbying group and disciplinary board for doctors. Its main objective is to make sure the financial and legal interests of its members are protected. By doing so the AMA also has a considerable amount of control over what doctors do. So, if a doctor wants to keep his house and send his kids to the best schools he must follow AMA union rules. If he does not he may find himself out of the union and out of work.

Your doctor cannot prescribe any treatment that does not have the approval of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). If they do, they are at risk of being sued or losing their license to practice medicine. After years of study and the expense incurred by medical school the risk is too great for them to take the chance. Their state medical boards can fine them for prescribing anything outside of approved treatments and can suspend or revoke their license. The federal government can also shut their doors and/or take their property. If they lose their right to see patients in hospitals because of an infraction they are essentially out of business.

How Could My Doctor Be Against Alternative Treatments?

Because most doctors are taught from their first day in medical school that disease can only be treated with drugs and because they are not taught to start with the root cause of the disease, you can be assured that your doctor is more than likely convinced that the only viable ways to treat cancer are surgery, chemotherapy, radiation, or a combination of the three. While there are a few other new treatments that are gaining a foothold in the industry they are also extremely expensive and don't have a much better track record of success. Doctors believe what they were taught in medical school and they also believe that if they were not taught it in medical school it must not be a viable option.

What Will My Doctor Say About These Treatments?

Doctors are trained to listen to your thoughts and feelings so they will most likely be willing to hear you out. They may act like they are interested and even ask you for more information about the treatments, diet or supplements you are considering. First, I would highly recommend not just trying to do your own thing quietly without letting them know. Even though they may not agree with what you're doing, they might be able to warn you of some negative reaction between something you're taking that could be very beneficial. Secondly, my experience says that very little natural or alternative treatment material given to a medical doctor is ever even read. They may give it a cursory glance but their mind is generally already made up that it is worthless. This will especially be true if the material is not from a peer reviewed medical journal. It is extremely difficult to find any such article in medical journals because they are subsidized by the pharmaceutical industry and have policies against including articles about natural substances.

Any “anecdotal evidence” you show your doctor will not be seen as viable. In the best case scenario, your doctor may say that a natural treatment can’t hurt you and that you are welcome to take them if you want to. They’ll most likely add that you are wasting your money and say that if it was a viable treatment that the FDA would approve it.

Medications prescribed by homeopathic and naturopathic doctors are not regulated by the FDA like chemotherapy drugs are so those doctors are generally looked down upon by the mainstream medical establishment.

Deciding What to Do

Your health and your body are yours and yours alone. No one can make these decisions for you. It is very common practice within the medical community for a patient to ask for a second opinion. Some doctors may be fine with that and some may say it’s fine but quietly (or not so quietly) think you’re crazy for not just doing what they say. But the reality is that most second opinions will be the same for a couple reasons. First, the second opinion, if it comes from a doctor caught in the same medical system will most likely have similar training and opinions so you will most likely get the same opinion rehearsed to you. Secondly, doctors are think of themselves almost like a brotherhood that don’t want to step on each other so they will read the report given by the first doctor and unless there is something vitally wrong with it they will most likely give a similar second opinion. These two things often render second opinions worthless.

It is of vital importance not to just take the word of one or two people. Please take a while to make up your own decisions based on your own research. This could be a life and death decision and it must be taken seriously. I am not personally comfortable giving that kind of power over my life to a doctor I hardly know, especially after seeing the statistics of what the survival rates of their treatments are. It is your life. Take it seriously enough to spend some time researching the different options you have and then make an informed decision.

If you're still not convinced that natural strategies to fight cancer will work for you, at least understand that a large majority of alternative treatments, diets or supplements can be taken while using traditional treatments like chemotherapy or radiation. They often help reduce the negative side effects caused by conventional treatments and at worst they cannot interfere or hurt. Remember, the reason natural therapies are more effective is because at the same time they attack the cancer they work to improve the immune system's ability to attack the cancer too.

If you were in a war, out on a battle field, you would use as many weapons against the enemy as you could to insure that you would win. You wouldn't go in with just a rifle or just a pistol or just a grenade or even just a bullet proof vest. You'd use them all. You also have many different weapons against cancer. Don't let your doctor tell you that you only have two or three. Use as many of the weapons you can find as you can. The more bullets that are hitting the enemy, the more likely it is to face defeat. If you didn't give the enemy everything you've got you might not make it out alive. Don't pick one treatment and say that is your decision.

There is one last point that must be made. Many natural cancer treatments are in the form of food supplements but you must be aware that all supplements are not created equal. In the book, "Choosing a Natural Cure for Cancer" you will find suggested supplements that are safe to use. They are so safe that you could take all of them if you wanted to with no harm. That is not the case with many herbs or supplements. For example, laetrile is a powerful anti-cancer agent that many will tell you to run out and take as much as you can. While that may be true it might interact negatively with certain drugs and it can, if taken in excess be toxic to your system. Be careful what you take but taking too much is definitely a better option than avoiding all supplements because you don't know what to take. Many of the treatments described in "Choosing a Natural Cure for Cancer" have eliminated cancer for many people as a single treatment, without the aid of other treatments at the same time, the more you take in combination the better and faster the results will be. This is especially important for advanced cancers. Hit it from all angles. A frontal assault with other treatments hitting it from the rear is your best strategy.

All the best to you as you bring your body back to good health! You may benefit from visiting our blog where natural remedies and cures for many diseases are discussed and updated continually. You will find it at <http://CureDiseaseNaturally.com/blog>. God bless! Steve